

Founded in 1979, the Centre de Culture Scientifique, Technique et Industrielle de Grenoble (CCSTI Grenoble) is a non-profit organisation that aims to promote science, technology and culture of innovation in the region of Isère and beyond. To achieve this, CCSTI Grenoble organises a range of activities including the design and implementation of interactive exhibitions, the production and organisation of open science workshops, round tables and public debates aimed to a wide range of audiences, and the touring of exhibitions and outreach tools (e.g. a Science Truck). Additionally, in the Rhône-Alpes region, CCSTI Grenoble coordinates

"La Fête de la Science

", the most important French science festival.

The Grenoble Science Centre also serves as a resource centre for a wide array of people and organisations that need advice and support to coordinate their own activities in science culture. Moreover, training is also available for teachers and students.